Indonesian, or Bahasa Indonesia, is the official language of Indonesia, but there are over 700 indigenous languages in use, and these can differ greatly from island to island. In Indonesia, you should try popular dishes like satay (skewered meat with a peanut sauce), and nasi goreng (Indonesia fried rice). You'll also find lots of traditional herbal teas for sale in Indonesia, often made with a warming blend of ginger, cardamon, lemongrass, or lime leaves. Wedang jahe (ginger tea), bajigur (coffee with coconut milk, pandan leaves, and ginger), and jamu (a turmeric, lemon, and ginger infusion) are all popular but ask for local recommendations when you arrive.

What's the currency of Indonesia?

The currency of Indonesia is the Indonesian rupiah (IDR). You'll find ATMs in all major cities and visitor destinations, and hotels and larger shops and restaurants accept credit cards. However, cash is still the predominant form of payment in most shops, markets, and at smaller food venues.

How much should I tip in Indonesia?

You can tip around 10% at restaurants in Indonesia. Most upmarket restaurants, bars, hotels, and lodges will include a 10% service charge on your total, while at local restaurants leaving 10% is considered generous. Taxi fares also include a 10% service fee, but drivers and guides, especially those who accompany you for several days, should be tipped extra. Tipping on cruises is also encouraged but will vary by boat and crew size.
